

Helen C. Eubank

Non-Rider

Amherst County, Virginia

Inducted 1992

Helen C. Eubank is well known in Amherst County for her support and years of service keeping score for jousting tournaments.

More important is her strong moral support provided to three generations of family riders which include her late husband, two sons and three grandchildren, riding as the Maid of Pleasant View – their lifetime home.

At many events where family members provided food, everyone knew they could count on her delicious food to complete a perfect day. Through the years she has offered ideas – many of which were adopted – including manner of dress or sashes that added color and attracted public attention to the sport.

Although health reasons keep her from attending many tournaments today, she waits – sometimes to late hours in the night – for news of how well her knights and lady rode – each must give a separate account ... and she expects good results!

It is said by many, because of her association and contributions, jousting is a better sport.
